

Remembering the Love

The Gods and very few people who are up there, are moving in contrast with this world.

To be accurate, in contrast to the lies within the real in this world. What many believe to be the world, is not real. It is a creation made from mass spiritual deprivation.

The same world would be different if human beings were in contact with their spiritual source. Yet now the contact most have is into delusion and deepens into the samsaric rift.

As humans move towards bottomless egotism, the delusional ego of ignorance, the darkness, and the repetition of fault after fault into oblivion, the Gods walk in the opposite direction.

Forgotten has laid the path and its highest understanding in the sands of what has been borderline forgotten, and with this, humanity has forgotten of its own origins, which are into higher domains and into a path of higher fulfillment.

No matter what the world does, we have to remember the love of the Gods for humanity, and show love back by application of their teachings, even in the face of the whole world and its entropic downwards spiral of destruction.

We go against this spiral - at least we have put ourselves on that task. Woe to those who have never considered this and have moved through this life as the cattle, for they are the carriers of the greatest emptiness.

Infinity will find those who seek it and remember the love of the Gods, those who hold on this love, and are heralds of the highest instruction. In you, the Gods will dwell.
